Sport Court of Arizona Opens New Showroom

Scottsdale, Ariz.—November 19, 2007

Celebrating its 30th year in the valley, Sport Court of Arizona opened a new showroom this week in the heart of a new old-town Scottsdale development known as Southbridge District. Nestled within the development, on the banks of a beautiful canal and large array of specialty retail shops known as The Mix, the showroom will be in the midst of one of the future hot spots of Arizona.

“This is a brand new venture for us here at Sport Court. We’ve never had a showroom before and are excited to explore the new dynamic of having walk-through traffic,” said Jim Fox, Sport Court of Arizona president and former Phoenix Sun.

The Sport Court showroom is also home to an exclusive sports memorabilia boutique known as the Player’s Club, which will feature individual lockers of selected athletes that will be filled with signed and donated items available for purchase. All proceeds will go directly to the athlete’s charity of choice. Some participating athletes include Matt Leinart, Shawn Marion, Wayne Gretzky along with a special locker dedicated to Pat Tillman.

Jennifer Croll, the brainchild behind the Mix Shops, including the Player’s Club said, “the Player’s Club gives patrons a unique opportunity to get involved with their local community and local athletes all while shopping on a beautiful Saturday afternoon. There is nothing else like this in Arizona and we hope the community will stand behind it.”

The Player’s Club will feature the Sport Court premier playing surface known as Power Game, and its professional-grade hoop system. Open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., the Showroom will offer an up-close and personal look at Sport Court products and services, and a Sport Court representative will be there to answer any questions.

Sport Court of Arizona brings backyards to life by building Sport Court game courts, basketball, multi-purpose, and tennis courts, along with putting greens, synthetic grass, trampoline pits, batting cages and more. For more information, visit
